CAPITAL FEELS TRAGEDY SHOCK; DEMANDS PROBE

Congressmen Initiate Action Looking Toward Investigation

REPORTS FILTER IN TO PRESIDENT

Opposition To Lighter-than-Air Vessels Is Aroused

BULLETIN
(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, April 4.—Chairman Vinson announced today that the house naval committee would investigate "the cause and circumstances" of the Akron accident.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—The proud Akron's tragic fate sent a shock through Washington today from President Roosevelt to the man in the street, leaving a sorrow that was accompanied by demands for investigation.

For hours in the silence of the navy's communications office, officers had sat grimly hoping for the finding alive of more of their comrades than the few picked up in the early morning. But as the day drew on, what hope there was diminished.

Aides of the president decided not to disturb his sleep when the first reports filtered in from the Jersey Coast. Once the circumstances became plain, however, a bustle stirred the White House akin to that at the navy to make sure of prompt relay of the situation for Mr. Roosevelt.

Demand Investigation
From Capitol Hill, senators and representatives poured inquiries into newspaper offices as to just what had happened and the prospects. Demands for an investigation were made even as the navy itself moved to initiate one.

The accident also aroused slumbering opposition to the expenditure of money for lighter-than-air vessels.

The cruiser Portland, from the crash scene, notified the navy at 9 a. m. that the Akron caught fire after it fell. It said no survivors and no bodies had been found by the two coast guard planes, and several vessels in the search.

The report said that the Akron was in a severe electrical storm before she went down but that Lieut. Com. Wiley, apparently the sole officer who escaped, "gives no reason for crash."

The message from the Portland said two coast guard planes and the cruiser had "covered most probable

REV. C. F. EVANS GIVES ADDRESS

Christian Church Pastor Speaks at Meeting of 3 Congregations

"If Jesus Christ Lived—Then What?" was the theme used by Rev. C. F. Evans, pastor of the Christian church for a sermon at the union pre-Easter service Monday evening at the Presbyterian church. Approximately 100 attended the service.

Rev. Evans discussed Jesus Christ's own claims for himself and stated that historical criticism has proven the account of his life trustworthy.

"If Jesus Christ lives, then we can believe that there is a friendly person at the heart of things who does care for the individual."

"Jesus Christ's life and death is a manifestation of God's love and care for us. If he lived, his ideals are supremely important and we cannot separate the conclusions, which he made from the man himself."

"We cannot honor Jesus Christ unless we take seriously what he has told us."

The speaker also discussed the attitude of Jesus toward the money question. Rev. Evans is of the opinion that Jesus himself was afraid of money and insisted that people have richness of life, rather than just material treasures.

Rev. Evans pointed out the importance of people manifesting the love of God in their attitude toward others, especially speaking of the problems of the industrial world, war and racial conflicts.

The service at 7:30 tonight will be at the Methodist Episcopal church with Rev. R. D. Walter, pastor of the Presbyterian church the speaker.

Grand Officers of K. of P. to Visit Here

Grand officers of the Knights of Pythias lodge are expected here next Monday evening for an open county meeting at which Salem lodge No. 142 will be host.

An entertainment is being arranged for the meeting.

Plans for the event were discussed at a meeting of the lodge last night at the hall, North Broadway. Work in the page rank was put on.

Akron, Home of Wrecked Dirigible, Stunned by Crash

Designer Too Shocked to Utter Statement; Recall "Jinx" That Has Trained Big Ship

(By Associated Press)
AKRON, O., April 4.—Akron, where the U. S. dirigible Akron was built and where now preparations are underway for testing her sister ship, the Macon, was stunned at news of the dirigible disaster today.
Dr. Karl Arstein, designer and builder of both giant airships, was so overcome he declined to make a statement. "I can say nothing until I know more about it," he said, his voice breaking.
Lieut. Com. T. G. W. Settle, chief of the Naval Inspection bureau at the Goodyear Zeppelin dock where the Akron was constructed and the Macon now awaits her debut into the air channels, said only, "It is too terrible for words if these reports are true."

Macon Chief Comments

Commander Alger H. Dresel, who will command the Macon, said the extent of the damage to the Akron "all depends on how the big ship came down. If it came down in a whirling, catapulling mass, there is little likelihood that many of the officers and crew could have saved themselves."

Fred W. Harpham, vice president of the Goodyear-Zeppelin, declared news of the Akron disaster was "so shocking that I have no comment."

Other officials, however, expressed the opinion the fate of the $4,500,000 Akron might affect the future of the zeppelin industry. They pointed out that a substitute for the McNary bill to license airships to carry mail is now awaiting congressional action.

Only yesterday, it was announced the Macon would make its initial flight next week, weather permitting. Today, none would venture an opinion when the flight would be held.

It was recalled that the wife of Admiral William A. Moffet, chief of the navy's bureau of aeronautics, (Continued on Page 4)

ASK FOR GUNS TO FIGHT CRIME

Davidson, Stoffer Place Anti-Gunman Plan With County

Purchase of three machine guns and the formation of a county-wide organization to be prepared for combating crime was advocated by Mayor John M. Davidson and Police Chief Ralph Stoffer in a meeting with county commissioners at Lisbon Monday.

Explaining that it was their idea to "give the officer an even chance with the gangster," Davidson and Stoffer also conferred with Sheriff Frank Ballantine on the matter, obtaining his approval before they conferred with commissioners.

The machine guns were to be placed in offices of police in Salem and East Liverpool and in Sheriff Ballantine's office at Lisbon.

Davidson and Stoffer also asked that an organization be effected whereby, during emergencies when battles with gunmen appear imminent, immediate communications will be made possible with authorities throughout the county.

The bandit of today, Davidson pointed out, is well equipped, much better than the police, having at his disposal machine guns and other weapons.

A Bad Trade

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., April 4.—Ruth Bryan Owen is going as an ambassador to Denmark, or Sweden, or Norway, or one of those civilized enough to tell a Swede from a Dane, or a Norwegian from a Swede. I know the difference means a lot to them, but it just means another tall blond to us.

Well, anyhow, Roosevelt is trading Ruth to that part of the world for Greta Garbo, and it's the only bad trade he has made since he got in. Ruth's got it on her any way you jump.

Those three countries we have always thought a lot of (even if we don't know 'em apart). They built our great northwest, and when we send the talented daughter of our great commoner, we are giving 'em the best we got.

SCHOOL FORCES AWAITING PAY

$6,000 To Be Distributed Among Employees Saturday

Approximately $6,000 will be placed in circulation in Salem Saturday when checks representing salaries for two weeks are issued to principals, teachers and janitors of Salem public schools.

Receipt of $21,000 from the county as the city school district's apportionment from personal and intangible tax collections Monday enabled the board of education to approve plans for the issuance of the payroll.

The board also approved a payment of $10,000 toward the retirement of a note for $25,000 held against the school district by the state teachers' retirement fund.

Earl S. Kerr, superintendent, reported that a date for the closing of schools is still indefinite but that it is hoped that the term can be continued until June 16 or, at the earliest, until June 2. It is probable, he said, that the definite date, together with dates for the holding of senior class commencement and other graduating class functions will be set at the board's meeting on Monday, May 1.

The election and re-election of principals, teachers and office assistants will also be taken up at the May session.

Members J. H. Wilson and Clyde R. Reich, appointed by President P. P. Mullins to study electric power rates as applied to schools, presented a report which they said revealed that schools are not forced to pay "an unfair rate."

NAVY BLIMP, 11 ON BOARD IN 2nd CRASH

(By Associated Press)

BEACH HAVEN, N. J., April 4.—The naval semi-rigid dirigible J-3 of the naval air station at Lakehurst, crashed into the sea about 1,000 yards off shore at 1:45 p. m. today. The fate of its crew was not immediately determined.

Two members of the crew, believed to have been still alive, were taken from the water by rescue workers in surf boats and in a waiting ambulance were taken to a hospital in Lakewood, 20 miles away.

Commander Simon R. Sands, commandant of the fifth coast guard district at Asbury park, said eleven men were on board.

He said he had received word the crash of the ship was 400 yards off shore and directly opposite the Bond coast guard station.

Three seaplanes were standing by and coast guard prepared at once to deflate the bag, Sands said.

NAVY'S GIANT SHIP WRECKED IN STORM OFF JERSEY COAST

Four Members of Crew Are Picked Up By Tanker As Wreckage of Big Blimp Disappears In Water

1 DEAD, COMRADES BROUGHT TO LAND

Lieut. Commander Wiley, Second in Charge, Tells of Crew's Fight As Dirigible Is Lashed by Gale

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, April 4.—A message to the third naval district headquarters today said that the body of Lieutenant Commander Harold E. MacLellan, of Westerly, R. I., an officer aboard the dirigible Akron, was picked up by coast guard boat 75 in latitude 39:26, longitude 73:48.

NEW YORK, April 4.—The three survivors of the Akron disaster arrived at the Brooklyn navy yard early this afternoon, one having to be removed to the navy hospital on a stretcher. The others walked ashore from the coast guard destroyer Tucker.

Lieut. Commander Herbert V. Wiley and M. E. Erwin, an enlisted man, walked from the Tucker and climbed to the front seat of one of the three ambulances which waited arrival of the Tucker.

Richard Deal, another enlisted man and the third survivor, was carried ashore on a stretcher and placed in an ambulance. Face scratches were the only visible injuries and Dr. T. J. Smith, of the navy, who made a preliminary examination on the Tucker said Deal was apparently not "in bad shape."

All three survivors declined to make any statement before completing their official reports. After they left the Tucker the body of Robert Copeland, enlisted man, was brought ashore. Copeland was taken from the sea alive but died shortly after.

Commander J. Whitbeck of the Tucker at first refused to say anything but later expressed the opinion that "there is no doubt the Akron has sunk."

Commander Whitbeck said the Tucker arrived on the scene at daylight, took the survivors and Copeland's body from a rescue ship, and started back as soon as convinced that further search would be fruitless. He said the sea was very rough at the time and while numerous pieces of wreckage were seen no bodies were found in the water.

"These are probably the only survivors," he said, indicating Wiley and two enlisted men.

WILEY'S MESSAGE TELLS OF CRASH

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, April 4.—A message signed "Wiley," and stating that the dirigible Akron, in the center of a storm, crashed about 12:30 a. m. today, was given out by the coast guard at Staten Island today.

The message, which carried no address, was sent from the cutter Tucker to the cruiser Portland, and intercepted by the coast guard cutter Chamberlain, moored at the coast guard base at Staten Island.

The Tucker is the vessel which Lieut. Commander H. V. Wiley, second in command of the Akron, two other survivors and the body of a fourth member of the crew were transferred from the rescue tanker Phoebe.

The message, was given out by the coast guard at Staten Island, follows:

"Sighted thunder storm about 30 miles south of Philadelphia about two zero four five (8:45 p. m.) and proceeded on east and northeast course. Light night, mostly to south. Ground obscured by fog. Ship in good static condition. Approximately 5,000 pounds. Sea heavy. In vicinity of Jersey shore at ten o'clock.

"Surrounded by lightning at light (presumably Barnegat light). Night atmosphere not very turbulent. Ran east course until about 23:00 (11 p. m.) then crossed to west at 24:00 (midnight) sighted light on ground and changed course to 130 degrees. Ship began to descend rapidly from flying altitude, 16,000 feet. Dropped ballast. Became entirely surrounded by lightning.

"About 00:30 (12:30 a. m.) ship began to descend rapidly from flying altitude 1,000 feet, dropped ballast forward and rearward.

"Three minutes later, seemed to be in center of storm. Ship began to shift about violently. Called all hands. Ship commenced to descend. Stern inclined downward.

"Dropped ballast. Rudder control continued to water. Ship demolished upon impact.

"In lightning flash saw many men swimming. Wreckage drifted rapidly away. Discipline in control car perfect.

(Signed) "Wiley."

DISASTER 20 MILES EAST OF JERSEY

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, April 4.—The navy dirigible Akron caught fire at 12:30 a. m. today in a violent thunder storm and fell into the sea with 76 men aboard.

The disaster occurred 20 miles east of the Jersey coast at Barnegat. Eight hours later wreckage was sighted 25 miles east of Atlantic City.

Four men, one of whom died, were taken aboard the German tanker Phoebe shortly after the accident. Among the 72 men still missing today was Admiral William A. Moffet, chief of the navy's aeronautical division.

Details of the accident were lacking. The navy believed it probable that lightning struck the great airship, and so reported to President Roosevelt.

Following the report of wreckage near Atlantic City life boats were sent out from coast guard stations at Longport, Townsend inlet and Stone harbor. Several airplanes, held back during the darkness because of low ceiling, took off after dawn to assist in the search.

The Tucker reported by wireless that it sighted wreckage at the scene of the crash. The message was timed at 6:04 a. m. An hour later the cruiser Portland could find no wreckage at the same place and navy officials for a time assumed the ship had gone to the bottom.

The Portland also made the report that the airship had caught fire in the crash, but did not give any basis for the assertion.

At Akron, Ohio, where the Akron was constructed by the Goodyear company, officials predicted the accident would affect the future of lighter-than-air craft. A sister-ship, the Macon, was completed recently and is about to undergo tests. Admiral Moffet christened the Macon a few weeks ago.

The survivors of the Akron besides Wiley are Moody E. Erwin and Richard E. Deal, both enlisted men. Deal also survived the crash of the Shenandoah in 1925. The dead man

A READJUSTED VIEWPOINT

If a digest of Wall Street opinions can be trusted, the nation's banking system is emerging from the collapse of public confidence with a new and liberal viewpoint which considers two fundamental reforms as necessary to sound reconstruction of confidence.

The first is separation of purely banking functions from investment and trust banking. The second is unification of commercial banking under a national banking system. The latter reform may be accomplished by forcing all commercial banks into the federal reserve system, or by legislating state banks out of existence.

Together with these structural reforms is a new banker's attitude which makes deflationary readjustment the logical instead of the dreaded thing. There is less inclination now to wait for a dispensation of fate which will restore things as they were when bankers were piling up wealth and conducting remunerative experiments with new schemes, some of which have been strongly disapproved recently.

Significantly, many attitudes once zealously defended now are being discarded by bankers whose critics lately believed them to be incapable of change. The shock of what has happened in the course of the banking crisis has brought about fundamental changes. There bids fair to arise from the wreckage of fallen figures a new type of banker with a conception of service so high that the unworthy bankers who have brought shame to the profession in the era now closing will represent a minority far less significant in power and numerical strength than they represent now.

There has been neither inclination nor time during recent weeks to point out what should be evident; that good bankers have been made to suffer by the sins of some of their brothers in the profession. Quality has declared itself plainly; from it will be reconstructed, if present indications are reliable, a banking quality in America will need institutions which will be so self-evident that bankers fear no more disastrous disappearances of public confidence and forced liquidation of assets.

FARM MORTGAGE RELIEF

President Roosevelt has come quickly to one of the sorest spots of the depression—mortgages. These obligations, incurred before the deflation started, are a great contributing cause of misery. Inability to meet them works hardship directly on mortgagors. As deflation has continued, it has brought heavy losses, also, to mortgagees.

It is taken for granted that the administration's recommendations for farm mortgage relief merely precede and do not take the place of general mortgage relief. Assurance has been given that city dwellers who undertook to buy houses at boom prices will be given the same hope of relief at an early date. Their predicament is fully as bad as that of the farmers, despite the fact that farm mortgage relief is part of an agricultural relief program expected to aid all classes.

It is obviously impossible for a farm owner who incurred maximum obligations in more prosperous times when wheat sold for $1 a bushel to meet those obligations with wheat selling at less than 50 cents a bushel. In the attempt to keep up, he may try to increase his production, but succeeds only in driving the price of wheat to a lower level by over-production.

The mortgage, on the other hand, has lost his protection in the meantime. Declining values of farm property have made it impossible in many cases to sell the defaulting mortgagor's assets for enough to cover the sum of the mortgage. Both parties to the transaction have been victimized by circumstances beyond their control. To relieve this unhealthy situation, it is proposed to scale down the principal and interest of the mortgage debt of American farmers. Wherever necessary, mortgages would be converted into assets represented by a federal bond issue bearing 4 per cent interest. Conversion would not be made in the whole amount; the difference would represent shrinkage in principal. That, together with a lower rate of interest, theoretically would afford sufficient relief to help farmers and the individuals and organizations who own mortgages on farm property.

This is generally acknowledged to be one of the things that must be done. It goes directly to the troubles of that class of people which stands at the foundation of the economic structure—the property owners who invested in good faith and whose equities must be protected if the structure is to be maintained. Unfortunately, it is none too soon to rush to their rescue. For thousands it is already too late.

What Others Say

TO ERR IS HUMAN
Out of a contrite heart, the Baltimore Evening Sun apologizes to its readers, editorially, for the lyric note that went sour. It was this way—

The day before, the Baltimore Evening Sun, one of the country's great liberal papers, had rejoiced editorially, that with the advent of Volstead modification, the coast guard would be permitted to return to its ancient ideals of courage, honor and efficiency.

Before prohibition the coast guard was a compact unit of 73 vessels whose duty it was to save lives at sea, apprehend an occasional smuggler and in every way uphold the cherished traditions which had made it great through the years since the founding of the republic.

But now it has grown to a navy of 521 vessels largely engaged in chasing rum runners, concerning itself with a passage at arms with ships sailing under foreign flags and in a lot of ways bringing disrepute on itself and ill will to the nation.

But hardly had the ink dried on the lyrical composition than the Sun had occasion to regret.

1. Washington dispatches declared there will be more work than ever for the coast guard.

2. Col. Amos Woodcock announces he will be needing more federal dry agents than ever.

3. Col. Baughman, head of the Maryland state police, says he will need a larger force now that Volsteadism is modified.

World's Largest Blimp for U. S. Army

So accustomed are we to the terrific bulk of the U. S. dirigible Akron, and her new sister-ship, Macon, that when we are told that this new Army blimp is the largest non-rigid airship in the world, we raise our eyebrows in the traditional "oh yeah?" manner.

By O. O. McINTYRE.

NEW YORK, April 4—Those of us reared by stern fathers are usually averse by the camaraderie between modern youth and their sires. There is an engaging mutual frankness at all times. I was married and settled before I had courage to light a cigar in the presence of my Dad. But in New York, fathers drop in at son's apartments—sons of wealthy rarely live at home anymore—for the evening aperitif, exchange perforce with the girls, a springing of whom may be of the Broadway chorus, and even join in "rolling the bones" in the kitchen.

To such sons, they are "The Governor." And there are certain little secrets that must be kept from "The Mater." I have seen such sons become slightly jingled in the presence of their fathers and there did not seem to be the slightest embarrassment on either side.

I recall a breakfast one morning, late, in a midtown hotel grill. A gray-haired father waited for his son, obviously late. The lad came in finally, a bit tousled but explained simply: "I'm sorry, Governor, but I was potted last night and overslept." They talked immediately of other things.

There is a period in every boy's life when he goes around making throaty unga-unga noises. I called today on a family whose hopeful was in the throes of such adolescent abba-gabba. What is more, I came away doing a sort of gurgling gallop-gallop myself. And—it just came to me—that's where Bert Lahr got his ang-gang-gwa.

Homer Barton, actor and brother of Ralph, the artist, is, perhaps, the most confirmed Broadwayite. He has lived for 16 years in the same hotel room on a fringe of Times Square. Like the ship boy drowsing on the giddy mast, he stands on a curb, nightly, puffing his pipe and unaffected by the furious swirl about. To him, Broadway is a pulsating example of the old French adage: "The more it changes, the more it is the same thing."

While Broadway, to many, seems straining grimly against oblivion, the changes are merely physical. There are hundreds of Homer Bartons, whose loyalty to the street never wanes. They have seen it disintegrate again and again, then congeal into the same dazzling thoroughfare.

Faith to Broadway is reminiscent of Rudyard Kipling's brave toast during the days the British empire reeled: "My lords, ladies and gentlemen: For what there is of it—for such as it is—and for what it may be worth—will you drink to England and the English?"

The two men who, more than others, by my notion, typify Broadway's solidity are George M. Cohan and Gene Buck. They have been untouched by its inflations, deflations and vagabond whimsy. They are the same as when I met them 20 years ago—regular fellow—that, along such an avenue of affections, is a singular achievement.

One who knows tells me that, during hectic hours of the banking flurry, J. P. Morgan slept but two hours a night for six days. He is as vigorously constituted, he suffers little from such drains of energy. During slight temporary lulls at his desk or phone, he read a few pages from Edgar Lee Masters' "Spoon River Anthology."

Idiosyncracies: Roxy often turns on a record of Ravel's "Bolero" while working out some state spectacle. Bruce Barton likes to tattle in the flush of dawn. . . . Jenny, of the Dolly sisters, goes without eating one day a week. . . . George D. Buckley also is a four-hours-a-night sleeper. . . . Joel Sayre, new writing sensation, studied at Oxford Heidelberg, Williams and a business college. . . . Vesta Victoria only suffered stage fright in America.

Tiffany's is the last hold-out against the general invasion of once-barricaded Fifth ave. signs. The massive stone facade is still unpolished. No place awes so much as Tiffany's. Today, I stepped in to regulate my watch, and, as all duded up as I was, I felt like Toots, the dance hall bouncer.

The Stars Say—

For Wednesday, April 5

An eventful and very interesting day, both in business and private life, is presaged from the dominant planetary configurations. It is likely that a stubborn opposition may result in arousing the attention of those in high places who may be found disposed to proffer friendly aid; or employers, or those in authority may confer honors, preferment or substantial financial backing to solid propositions. But be careful in signing all papers, with partnerships and deals with both public and secret organizations. Private affairs should flourish and pleasantly.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of splendid opportunity, with the assurance of those in places of power and authority. This in spite of stubborn obstacles and opposition, possibly from partnerships or in connection with papers or documents of a public or secret nature as well, this calling for wariness in all writings. A child born on this day should be steady, persevering, ambitious and versatile and should make a notable success of his life.

MIAMI, Fla.—Interesting meeting in a great New York auditorium—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., built the hall. Cardinal Hayes, chief of the Catholic hierarchy in New York, occupied a seat of honor. Protestant and Jewish clergymen spoke. The gathering of different faiths was brought about by a decree of Pope Pius XI, declaring this a holy year.

Former Governor Alfred E. Smith asked the nation to implore special divine guidance for President Roosevelt, and to pray for "an uprooting of bigotry and oppression."

The Reverend S. Parkes Cadman interpreted the gathering as American recognition of President Roosevelt's call for a better national life, as well as of the exhortation of the pope.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT was represented by Postmaster General Farley. Former Governor Smith in his address predicted:

"The position of the pope in respect to universal peace must eventually be assumed by all nations and by all peoples as the fundamental principles of right thinking."

Many believe that deeper religious conviction will help end the depression.

THE GOVERNMENT, now going ahead with its plan to employ 250,000 idle in the forests, will establish 1,000 or more forest camps, each to accommodate from 100 to 200 workers, by July 1. Each state will send its quota of workers to these camps.

The establishment of the camps, let us hope, will be done more economically than such work was done by dollar-a-year patriots of the big war. This is a war, but not one for dollar-a-year patriotic squandering.

THE WISER MEN in Germany are endeavoring to moderate the anti-Jewish boycott. Even the lower stratum in race and religious hatred shows less violence. Boycotting placards attached to Jewish shops no longer use the words "Beware of the Jew" or "Dance-Jew store," and black and yellow quarantine signs are no longer attached to Jewish premises.

Germans of Jewish blood could teach race hatred a useful lesson, if it were possible for all to leave Germany with their property and their important enterprises simultaneously. But that is out of the question.

It is probable that many of the younger Jews, with important industrial, commercial and scientific work ahead of them, will leave Germany. They will be missed.

The alleged estate of Professor Einstein's $7,000 bank account is not worthy of Germany's traditions.

FLORIDA notes the fact that three horse racing and seven dog racing associations have paid to the state this year $710,000 in commissions on betting. That is gratifying. But to get the $710,000, men and women in Florida had to bet at least $23,000,000, practically all of which went to the gambling promoters and the betting operations. Race track betters do not leave with profits. They stop when they must, because their money is gone. That is not so gratifying.

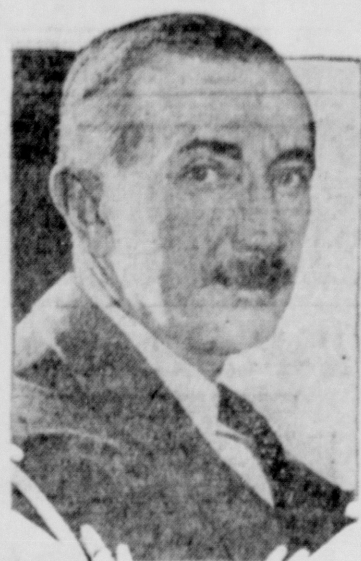

Florida may find comfort in the fact that the greater part of the $23,000,000 was supplied by visitors from other states. On the other hand, citizens of Florida certainly contributed at least four times the amount that Florida got for its commission. Therefore, the state of Florida itself actually out of a couple of millions, carried away by the dogs and horses.

THEN again you are told that without this race-track money, divided among the counties of Florida, public schools in one county might have been compelled to close for lack of funds. Some Florida boy, thanks to education paid for by gambling money, may develop genius that will discourage or prevent gambling.

That will take a long time, for gambling is the vice of those that lack ambition or real ability. Gambling takes the place of genuine effort and will last a long time.

A recent photo of Daniel W. McCormack, of New York, who has been nominated for Commissioner General of Immigration by President Roosevelt to succeed Harry E. Hull. McCormack, whose picturesque career has taken him to far corners of the globe in such varied capacities as Director of Internal Revenue for Persia, and Inspector General of Army Transport in France during the war, was recommended by Secretary of Labor Perkins.

Japanese soldier bearing on his back a dead comrade, carrying him to the States. The Japanese general, Tadashi Kiyawara, stops his living man, with his burden, and shakes hands with the dead soldier, congratulating him on having died for his country.

You probably would not see that outside of Asia. It emphasizes the patriotism of the Japanese. But it does not bring the dead man back to life or take care of his wife and children.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT will send Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, daughter of the late William Jennings Bryan, to Denmark as "envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary." Mrs. Owen will do the work of the state department ably and conscientiously, represent the United States with dignity, look after Americans traveling in Denmark as well as she can and make no display of snobbery.

Ohio Welfare Unit Lists Relief Costs Under New Program

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS, April 4.—A work relief program to provide for 200,000 unemployed heads of families in Ohio for 35 weeks would cost a minimum of $169,800,000, the state relief commission has estimated.

In reaching this conclusion, the commission figured that 25 per cent of the men would work for $10 a week; 60 per cent for $15 a week, and 15 per cent for $25 a week. The labor would be confined to 30 hours a week.

The figures were compiled in the gathering of statistics on unemployment and the probable cost of putting the able bodied, willing to work, family heads back in industry.

The compilation does not include all those now unemployed in the state. The commission has directed that its cooperating departments in the state government obtain additional figures on the persons out of work in each county and the work relief now carried on.

Thus far the statistics show that the relief scale begins with a minimum of 12½ cents an hour on a basis of two days of work a week, upwards.

The commission is seeking to answer two questions in full. They are: Where can jobs be found, and how many are actually unemployed? It was pointed out that many jobless persons are still living on savings and have not yet sought relief.

AKRON STUNNED BY SHIP CRASH

Home of Navy's Giant Dirigible Awaits More News

had christened the Macon in a colorful ceremony only a few weeks ago. Admiral Moffett was aboard the ill-fated Akron.

Designed to be Safest

Both the Akron and the Macon were designed to be the largest, safest airships in the world. They were nearly twice the size of the Graf Zeppelin and nearly three times the size of the Los Angeles, now decommissioned.

Because of improvements in construction developed since the Akron was built, the Macon is somewhat lighter than her elder sister ship and is expected to prove several miles an hour faster. Her speed is calculated at 84 miles an hour, maximum.

Otherwise, the Macon is a twin of the Akron in all external and internal essentials.

Like the Akron, the Macon will carry five fighting planes which may be released from a compartment in the lower forepart of her hull. When in flight, they may be caught by "hook-and-eye" mechanism and hoisted into their places within the ship.

Ever since the Akron made her first flight, she has been followed by a "jinx". In fact, even while she was being built an alleged plot by a communist worker to weaken her was discovered.

Two other workmen made charges that materials used in the Akron's construction were faulty. The naval affairs committee of the house of representatives investigated and reported the airship without defects.

During maneuvers in January, 1932, the giant ship tore loose from the naval tanker Paloka in Norfolk, Va., but was reported undamaged.

Investigators See Accident

Then, while being groomed at Lakehurst, N. J., on Feb. 21, 1932, for a flight with a congressional subcommittee which was investigating her airworthiness, the dirigible was caught in a sudden gust of wind and landed to the ground. Its fabric and a vertical fin were damaged and the congressional delegation cancelled its flight plans.

The ship was repaired and pronounced fit as new.

On the Pacific coast last summer, as the crew attempted to pull her to her mooring place at San Diego, Calif., a strong wind caught the craft and shot her upward.

Three members of the ground crew were carried up with her, hanging to the tow ropes. Two fell and were killed. The third clung to the rope until members of the crew pulled him aboard and to safety.

MICHIGAN CASTS LOT FOR REPEAL

Wet Strength Sweeps All But Very Few of Legislative Districts

(By Associated Press)

DETROIT, April 4.—Michigan next Monday will cast the first formal state vote in favor of repealing the Eighteenth amendment to the federal constitution.

Wet strength that surprised even the organizations sponsoring repeal, swept through all but a very few of the state legislative districts yesterday to elect between 80 and 90 of the 100 delegates to the convention that will act on the repeal proposal.

Only 51 votes are required to control the convention.

It was the first opportunity the electors of any state have had to vote on repeal of the national prohibition law and the convention next week will be the first assembly of its kind ever held.

Appearing on the ballots as "wet" or "dry" either for or against repeal, the delegates meeting in Lansing April 10 will function much as an electoral college, carrying out the will of the voters as expressed in yesterday's referendum.

Among the centers that voted for repeal delegates were such cities as Detroit, Grand Rapids, Flint, Jackson, Kalamazoo, Marquette, Muskegon, Saginaw, Port Huron, Battle Creek and Lansing. On incomplete returns, the only districts showing dry strength were in Barry county, (Eastings) and Ingham county's second district, lying outside the city of Lansing.

Young People's societies of six Salem churches will join in staging the third annual Easter sunrise service at Reilly athletic stadium at 6 o'clock Sunday, April 16.

Joining in the service, held last year at the Methodist church and in 1931 at Reilly stadium, are societies of the Trinity Lutheran, First Baptist, First Christian, First Methodist, Friends and Presbyterian churches.

Use of the stadium for the service was granted the societies by members of the board of education at their meeting Monday night. The service will include a program of talks by pastors, songs and prayers.

Miss Louise Hixenbaugh, North Lincoln ave., presented the request for use of the stadium to the board.

The board also granted permission to Rev. S. A. Mayer of the Methodist church and Rev. R. D. Walter of the Christian church, for the use of the high school auditorium for presentation of a special Easter pageant on the evenings of April 12 and 13.

Business Men's Group To Conduct Canvass In Downtown Area

Fixing the drive quota at $1,500, T. Emerson Smith, board chairman, today announced the appointment of 11 Salem men who will take charge of the Salvation Army emergency appeal campaign which will be held here on April 18 to 22.

R. J. Burns is chairman of the committee which is composed of Vance R. McBane, Joseph Bloomberg, C. W. Kaminsky, Merle Miller, Leo Weisner, Warren W. Brown, James P. Hayden, W. L. Fuitts, George Russell and E. H. Althouse.

Others to be named in this committee will function in the downtown district while other units will be named by Chairman Smith to conduct the drive in industrial and residential areas. A school committee will also be organized.

Illustrating the Salvation Army's work among the transient needy, Captain Grace Smith today narrated the following incident:

Mr. and Mrs. M., residing in Poland, lost their home because of the lack of funds. The father, who had gambled away the family funds, managed to save enough for a trip to America, leaving his family in Poland.

Mrs. M., hoping for a reunion with him, applied to the nearest Salvation Army corps in Poland, to secure passage to this country. The Army made all necessary arrangements and she and the seven children came to the United States. Searching for her husband, she finally arrived in Salem, where food and lodging were provided.

Family Reunited
Later, Captain Smith relates, a home was obtained at low rental where she settled. The Army workers, interested in the case, instructed the children in knowledge and customs of their new country, teaching older girls to cook and sew.

Under care of the Salvation Army, the family progressed. Five of the children were converted and later all were reunited with the husband and father.

Completion of New Beer Commission Expected; Seven On Board

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, April 4.—Returning today from a brief vacation at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Governor White is expected to act immediately to complete the personnel of the state liquor control commission.

The commission of seven members, authorized by the new state law legalizing 32 per cent beer, must be named before brewers and retailers can get their license to sell the brew after midnight Thursday when modification of the Volstead act becomes effective.

Governor White has named only three commissioners and a director. As a result, preparations to have the newly legalized beverage on sale Friday were halted.

However, L. L. Faris, director of the commission, and the three members already named said the licensing body would be in a position to function as soon as they have a quorum. At the governor's office, it was said the chief executive would appoint the remaining four commissioners shortly after his arrival home. He departed from White Sulphur Springs last night.

Faris said that applications for licenses would be received at Cleveland, Cincinnati, Toledo, Dayton, Akron and Youngstown as well as Columbus. Deputy commissioners will forward all applications to Columbus for final approval.

JURY FORMING IN NEFF TRIAL

First Evidence In Murder Case May Be Heard Wednesday

Selection of a jury in the first degree murder trial of Cyrus H. Neff, 51, Canfield business man, was being continued in Mahoning county common pleas court, Youngstown, today, with possibilities that first evidence in the case will be heard Wednesday afternoon.

Tentative selection of eight jurors, four men and as many women, was completed before the court adjourned Monday afternoon, while three more were seated this morning. Two of those seated yesterday, however, were excused by the court today, while officials announced that probably 30 more persons will be examined before the complete jury is formed.

Neff is facing a first degree murder indictment in the fatal shooting last October of his wife, Blanche. She was instantly killed when a shotgun Neff was holding exploded while she was asleep on a cot at their Canfield home.

Jurors are being questioned carefully by Prosecuting Attorney J. H. Leighninger as to their opinions on capital punishment, their theories on the case in question and as to any relationship or acquaintance with Neff or others interested in the Neff family.

The state is seeking the death penalty. Carefully watching each move of the prosecution, and apparently vitally interested in all activities at the trial, Neff showed no emotion while prospective jurors were being examined.

Plans were being discussed by both Neff's attorneys and the state for a visit, after the jury box is filled, to the scene of the fatal shooting. This, they agreed, will be done before the hearing of evidence is opened.

CAPITAL FEELS TRAGEDY SHOCK

areas enroute to present position", apparently referring to the area where survivors might be seen or bodies might be picked up.

As the demands arose on Capitol Hill for an investigation, Senator Walsh of Massachusetts, Democrat of the naval committee, asserted that a "prompt, thorough and direct investigation should be undertaken without delay."

It's "Waste of Money"
Senator Dill (D. Wash.) a former member of the naval committee, who had consistently opposed appropriations for lighter-than-air craft, called the mishap another "illustration of the awful waste of money of building great gas bags that serve only as sky shows in peace time and are worthless in war."

Chairman Vinson, of the house naval committee, told newspapermen he would like to see what the navy's inquiry finds before deciding whether the committee shall go into the case itself.

In the last congress, it investigated charges of sabotage on the Akron and reported that the airship was all right.

At the same time, Rep. McClintic (D. Okla.), sponsor of the investigation made by the naval committee last congress, said he always had felt the airship might have been irreparably damaged by its accident at Lakehurst.

McClintic was one of the representatives standing on the ground waiting for a trial flight in the airship at the time of that accident.

Meanwhile, the wife of Rear Admiral William A. Moffett—who was aboard the aircraft—was upholding the navy tradition that the wife of a navy man doesn't become discouraged and lose hope easily.

Through the late night she had waited patiently for cheering word, bearing up, a friend said, "just like the wife of any navy man."

Mrs. Moffett has two sons in the naval aviation service.

Cleveland Indians Confident Of Winning American Loop Flag

BOARD OF EDUCATION OPPOSES SPRING FOOTBALL CONTEST HERE

Improved Infield Seen As Tribe's Big Asset In 1933 Pennant Fight

The Cleveland baseball troupe breaks camp today and begins its annual trek northward—a journey that every member of the team feels confident will end in September with the Indians as American league champions.

Never before have the Clevelanders displayed such pep, confidence and cock-sureness and, refusing to concede the championship to the New York Yankees or any other aggregation, the club apparently is all set for the opening of the season less than two weeks hence.

Optimism Justified

With Chalmers Cissell leading the horn-blowing parade, the Indians are taking nothing for granted and they say in chorus, if the pennant is given to any one, Cleveland is the proper recipient. And the truth of the matter is that Cleveland players really have just cause for their enthusiasm.

For the first time since Roger Peckinpaugh has taken over the reins of the Indians, he has an excellent pitching staff, one of the best outfield combinations in both major circuits, and an infield that promises to hold its head on par with any in the American loop.

A first-string hurling corps composed of temperamental Wasley Ferrell, Clint Brown, Mel Harder, Oral Hildebrand and Willis Hudlin is enough to make any manager feel a bit optimistic.

This boy Ferrell, who makes up his mind that his manager is not trying to knife him in the back every time he is sent in to pitch against the Yankees, Athletics or Washington, and pitches against first-division clubs with the same gusto he does against second-division foes, can outpitch any right-hander in the big league business. He should, if he forgets his grievance against the popular Peck, pile up more than 20 victories.

COLUMBUS, April 4.—Only 20 teams are scheduled in the American Bowling congress tournament tonight. Most of the line-ups are Ohio groups, although Erie, Pa., Bayonne, N. J., and Montreal, Quebec, also have pinsters in action.

One more change was recorded among the team leaders on last night's schedule. With games of 957, 939 and 1,006, the Hibbs Orioles, Buffalo, moved into tenth place with a 2,902 score, tying the Elks of Medina, N. Y.

Yesterday's minor event card was similar to Sunday's and during the terrific bombardment two new all-time A. B. C. records were produced and eight changes recorded among the high ten leaders.

Topping the sensational attack were Gil Zunker and Frankie Benkovic of Milwaukee. They scored games of 486, 501 and 428 to set a new high mark in the dual event. The old record was 1,380, scored by Clarence and Harry Thoma at Chicago in 1924. Zunker also boosted the all-time high all-events mark in piling up a total of 2,660 for his nine games. The former mark was 2,619, made by Billy Knox of Philadelphia at Milwaukee in 1923.

:: Baseball Gossip :: From Southern Camps

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO, April 4.—The Chicago Herald and Examiner in a copy-righted story today said that despite denials of National league baseball officials, rumors were current that Outfielder John (Pepper) Martin and Jimmy Mooney, south-paw pitcher of the St. Louis Cardinals would join the Chicago Cubs in a trade involving Shortstop Mark Koenig and a cash payment.

Lack Reserve Fielder

Averill, weak on ground balls, is nevertheless a great player, and the greatest home run swatter ever to don a Cleveland uniform. He's won more than a few games by timely bingles over the concrete. There are better hitters and nicer looking outfielders than Porter, but until an other Cuyler, Waner or Meusel comes along to Cleveland, he'll do very nicely.

The big thing lacking on the tribe roster is a capable and dependable reserve catcher. A spare outfielder of any worth would help the team's chances a lot for in event of injury to any member of his first-string triumvirate, Peck lacks a reliable sub.

The biggest source of gloom for Indian rooters, however, is the improved infield. First of all—there's Bill Cissell, second-sacker, who joined the club in mid-season of 1932. When he put on a Cleveland outfit the team suddenly appeared to take on new life. And now the tribe has that necessary sparkplug right from the start.

Knickerbocker Looks Good

The showing of Bill Knickerbocker in exhibition games gives him a team a snappy shortstop to share burdens with Johnnie Burnett. If the former hits big league pitting like he did down south, Burnett will be warming the bench for most of the season. Willie Kamm at third and Eddie Morgan at first round out the infield.

Harley Boss, vaunted rookie who can field the initial sack better than Morgan ever dreamed of doing, has failed entirely when it came to stickwork. To date he has collected but two singles in 28 trips to the plate. All in all, the tribe will have as powerful a hitting infield as any American league rival. Morgan batted 350 in 1931 but fell under the 300 mark last year. He should be up again this season. Cissell always cleuts around 320 and Burnett and Knickerbocker are good for 300. Kamm, who averages around 275, nevertheless gets them when they're needed most.

The outfield is well over the 300 mark in batting.

Roy Spencer and youthful Frank Pytlak will divide the receiving duties, both looking better than the veteran Glenn Myatt in pre-season contests.

So, with a little luck and a few breaks, Cleveland ought to be in the thick of the fight all the way. Salem fans will make several trips to watch the team in action and are hoping that they'll be able to continue their journeys to the city next September for three or four world series classics.

Uncle Sam's First "Submarine Seaplane"

Here is the first published photo of the new "submarine plane" built at Roosevelt Field, New York, for the United States Navy. The craft, a seaplane, has folding wings which will permit it to be stowed into an eight-foot space in the superstructure of a submarine. The plane can be assembled in a few minutes, when its wings measure 31 feet across. It carries an observer and pilot.

PELICANS EASY FOR INDIANS IN ONE-SIDED TILT

Hildebrand, Twogood Star On Mound; Boss Hits First Home Run

NEW ORLEANS, April 4.—Oral Hildebrand and Lefty Twogood had things their own way with the New Orleans Pelicans, hurling shutout ball while their teammates were slugging out 18 hits for a 16-0 victory.

Hildebrand held the Pels to seven hits in seven innings, and Twogood blanked them without a base knock in the two rounds he worked, while a mixed line-up of regulars and rookies hammered out 18 hits for a total of 29 bases.

Boss Hits Homer

It was a field day for some of the young Indians who have been conspicuous for the absence of a batting punch throughout the training season—notably Harley Boss, the young first baseman, and Odell Hale, the third base recruit.

Emerging from his mysterious batting lethargy with a vengeance, Boss slammed out a home run and two singles, batting in three runs and scoring four himself. Hale collected a triple and three singles in five trips to the plate. With Joe Vosmik, who made two doubles and a single, the young infielders led an attack that promised much for the coming season.

By their sparkling pitching today Hildebrand and Twogood ran the string of consecutive scoreless innings hurled by the Cleveland moundsmen to 24. In yesterday's doubleheader Willis Hudlin and Clint Brown whitewashed the Pelicans for 15 straight rounds, and there is no question now that the Indian fingers are ready for bigger game.

Harder to Hurl Today

Mel Harder, whose illness and consequent lack of condition has worried Manager Roger Peckinpaugh, is to get his chance to prove himself in today's game, which will be the last before the tribe breaks camp and starts the interrupted northward march.

Harder and, to a lesser extent, Wes Ferrell still are in the doubtful class, but Hildebrand, Hudlin and Brown have proved themselves ready for the bell.

Vets Request Use of Athletic Stadium For July 4 Card

Requests filed by members of Allen Reynolds post No. 892, Veterans of Foreign Wars, for the use of Reilly athletic stadium on July 4 for a benefit boxing show were taken under consideration by members of the Salem board of education Monday night.

Request for the use of the stadium was filed with Supt. E. S. Kerr by Joe P. Mayhew, member of the V. F. W.'s fight committee, who said that all proceeds, above expenses, would be donated to the Salem relief commission.

The matter was to be taken under consideration by board members, who said that they preferred that, if a fight show was to be staged, it should be held for the benefit of the school milk fund. Final action will be taken on the matter at the board's May meeting.

Miller Favored In Tilt With Payne

(By Associated Press)

LOS ANGELES, April 4.—For the fourth time in five weeks, Freddie Miller, National Boxing association featherweight champion of the world, will step into a California ring tonight, meeting Cecil Payne, Louisville, Ky., lightweight, at ten rounds.

The titleholder, a southpaw from Cincinnati, who showed exceptional boxing skill in beating Baby Ariz-mendi, Little Dempsey and Speedy Dado, in defense of his title in the last three bouts, is favored to defeat his heavier opponent, Payne will come in at 132, and Miller probably around 128.

REFUSE REQUEST OF COACH STONE FOR GRID CLASH

Members say Game Would Interfere With 1933 Track Program

Plans for a spring football contest planned by Salem High school this month were opposed by members of the board of education and Earl S. Kerr, superintendent, at the board's monthly meeting at the high school Monday night.

Would Interfere With Track

The claim that the spring gridiron duel would interfere with the school's track and field program, forwarded by Kerr and the board, formed the basis of the opposition. The contest was opposed by unanimous vote of members.

Members concurred in the theory that spring grid activities should be confined to "blackboard work and a study of fundamentals" and pointed out that Sdlem, during spring months, is "traditionally a track and field city, known throughout the country in this sport."

President F. P. Mullins and Joel H. Sharp explained that they "see no reason for playing the game." J. H. Wilson and Clyde R. Reich also opposed the plan.

Stone Requests Game

Request that the school be granted permission to play the spring contest was filed with Supt. Kerr by Head Coach Floyd W. Stone who has been conducting spring football practice in the school gymnasium for the last two weeks.

Stone and Principal Wilbur J. Springer had formulated a plan

E. C. Sheen's all-star basketball team will oppose Cambridge tossers in a post-season contest at the Memorial building Thursday night.

Sheen will place a powerful quintet on the court to oppose the visitors.

for playing the game with one of the school's "natural" rivals, preferably East Liverpool, for the purpose of raising funds to pay expenses incurred during spring grid, track and field practices.

The plan had aroused great interest among the city's fandom, many of whom have been, for 144 three years, visiting other cities to witness interscholastic gridiron battles. A number will be played in the district again this spring.

Under Heel of the Conqueror

Here is a study in abject subjection. Chinese snipers captured by Japanese in the recent operations in the Jehol Province are shown as they hopelessly awaited disposal by their captors under close guard. In most cases prisoners caught sniping are instantly shot. Note how the captives are compelled to remain on their knees with arms extended.
